4 FIRST CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE

(Gross Negligence)

5 9. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 2234, subdivision (b), of 6 the Code, in that he engaged in gross negligence in the care and treatment of Patient 1.[1] The 7 circumstances are as follows:

8 10. On or about June 6, 2019, the Board received a Code section 805 Health Facility/Peer
9 Review Report from Mercy Hospital (Hospital) that stated that in August of 2018, the Hospital
10 opened an investigation regarding a possible medication error made by Respondent. Respondent
11 was made aware of the investigation, and while the investigation was pending, Respondent
12 resigned his medical staff membership and clinical privileges.

13 11. On or about August 16, 2018, Patient 1, a 34-year-old female, was admitted to Mercy 14 Hospital at 39 weeks gestation for a scheduled elective repeat Cesarean section. Her past medical 15 history was negative and she was in excellent health.

16 12. The delivery was performed by obstetrician, Dr. M.T., and assisted by obstetrician, 17 Dr. J.T. Respondent was the anesthesiologist for Patient 1's delivery.

18 13. Medications in the operating room are kept in an Omnicell (a secure medication 19 dispensing cabinet with various drawers). The planned anesthetic was a spinal injection of 20 Marcaine 0.75%[2]. The Marcaine 0.75% ampules were stored in the back left of drawer number 4
21 of the Omnicell, which was the anesthesia medication drawer.

22 14. In the operating room, Patient 1 was placed in a sitting position. Respondent
23 administered a spinal anesthetic which he believed was spinal Marcaine plus Duramorph[3], and 24 then the patient was turned supine. After the spinal injection, the patient did not become numb as 27 [2] Marcaine 0.75% is the brand name of bupivacaine hydrochloride and epinephrine. It is used as local anesthesia, caudal block, epidural block, nerve blocks, and spinal anesthesia.

expected. Respondent alleged that he stated that the medication being used had already "expired." Only Respondent examined the expiration date and the ampule. Respondent then injected another dose of the spinal anesthetic medication into the patient - Patient 1 was once again placed in the sitting position, and a repeat spinal anesthetic injection was administered. Within minutes, the patient became numb. The Cesarean section was performed without complication. The infant was presented to the mother in the operating room, and then taken to the neonatal unit for observation. The records for the procedure indicated that the duration of the anesthesia on the case was from 7:26 a.m. to 8:55 a.m., and that the duration of the surgery was from 8:11 a.m. to 8:49 a.m.

15. Following the closure of the Cesarean section incisions, Patient 1 was taken back to her labor and delivery room. At 10:08 a.m., approximately one hour and thirteen minutes after the conclusion of the anesthetic time for the Cesarean section, the patient became unresponsive with dilated pupils. Her oxygen saturation rate was at 99-100%, her heart rate was 130 beats per minute, her systolic blood pressure was 130 to 140 and her respiratory rate was 8 to 10 breaths per minute.

16. Respondent was paged to the patient's beside. He arrived at 10:26 a.m. The Acute Care Team had already administered Narcan intravenously twice with no change in the patient's condition. Respondent confirmed that the patient was unresponsive with dilated pupils. He attempted to place an oral airway but the patient spit it out. He then placed an endotracheal tube for airway protection and management without giving any additional medications. The patient underwent a head CT scan to rule out a possible amniotic fluid embolism and it was interpreted as a normal examination of the head. The patient then had multiple grand mal seizures and was admitted to the intensive care unit (ICU) where she was managed by the hospital's intensivist. The patient was treated with Keppra for the seizures and with propofol and fentanyl for sedation. She had complete paraplegia. Laboratory studies drawn that day revealed evidence of digoxin[4] in the patient's blood. An MRI of the brain showed symmetric edema in the medial aspects of the bilateral temporal lobes, bilateral insular cortices, bilateral frontal lobs, and bilateral basal

17. On or about August 18, 2018, Patient 1 was transferred to the neurology ICU at Memorial Hospital for a higher level of care. She remained obtunded and in the ICU until extubation on or about August 29, 2018. She was discharged home on or about September 11, 2018. Her discharge diagnoses included complete paraplegia, altered mental state, spinal cord inflammation, and brain edema. She was enrolled in a day treatment program at the Center for Neuro Skills, 5-days a week, 6-hours a day, for speech, physical therapy, occupational therapy and counseling. She used a wheelchair for the next year and thereafter began walking with the assistance of a walker.

18. On or about August 16, 2018, the hospital initiated an investigation regarding the digoxin level found in the patient's system. In the sharps container[5] in the operating room, there was no expired Marcaine ampules; however, there was an empty digoxin ampule. The Omnicell record indicated that there were three ampules of digoxin in the machine, but only two ampules were still physically present inside the machine. The digoxin had been stocked in that Omincell in or around October 2017, and no one had used any digoxin from that Omincell since that time. The digoxin ampules were stored in the back left of drawer number 7 of the Omicell (the cardiac drawer) and the spinal Marcaine 0.75% ampules were stored in a similar location in the back left of the anesthesia drawer. The Omincell record dated August 16, 2018 reflects that drawer number 7, the cardiac drawer which contained the digoxin, was accessed at 6:47 a.m. It was determined that Respondent administered digoxin instead of bupivacaine for spinal anesthesia during the patient's cesarean section which likely caused the patient's severe inflammatory response post administration. Respondent denied erroneously administering digoxin.

19. The standard of care for an anesthesia provider requires the selection of the correct medication, and to check that it is the correct medication prior to drawing it into a syringe and injecting it into a patient.

20. On or about August 16, 2016, at the time of Patient 1's cesarean section delivery,

[5] Sharps containers are puncture-resistant containers used to safely dispose of hypodermic needles and other sharp medical instruments.

both the spinal Marcaine and the digoxin ampules were located in similar compartments in different drawers in the Labor and Delivery operating room Omnicell, and Respondent retrieved the wrong medication, digoxin, instead of spinal Marcaine. He failed to read the ampule labelling and did not adequately check the medication. He drew it up into a syringe and injected it into the patient's spinal fluid in error. This is an extreme departure from the standard of care.

21. When there is any question of whether a medication is expired, the standard of care requires that the anesthesia provider save the ampule as evidence that the expired medication was stocked in the anesthesia drawer. Although Respondent alleged that he did not save the alleged "expired" ampule of medication, no such expired ampule was ever discovered or documented. Respondent committed an extreme departure from the standard of care when he failed to save the expired ampule.

22. When the first spinal injection did not result in patient numbness, Respondent should have assessed why it did not work. Respondent failed to double-check the identity of the ampule he had drawn up and administered into the spinal fluid. This is an extreme departure from the standard of care.

SECOND CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE

(Repeated Negligent Acts)

23. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 2234, subdivision (c), of the Code, in that he engaged in repeated acts of negligence in the care and treatment of Patient P. The circumstances are as follows:

24. The allegations of the First Cause for Discipline are incorporated herein by reference as if fully set forth.

25. Each of the alleged acts of gross negligence set forth above in the First Cause for Discipline is also a negligent act.
